BROKAW:

With me this morning is a scientist who has spent 32 years studying the behavior of spider. Why spiders? Well, according to Dr. Peter Witt, Director of Research for the North Carolina Department of Mental Health, a spider's web is more than just a flycatcher. He thinks it may hold clues to the evolution of human social behavior. Dr. Witt is going to show you what happens to a spider when it has been fed drugs like tranquilizer, speed or marijuana.
